Biography

Toy designer Amy C Wilson was born in Albany, New York and moved to New York City when she was a teenager. While in New York she earned a Bachelor of Fine Arts degree for Toy Design at the Fashion Institute of Technology.

Hands that work in various mediums and exhibit an array of imagination has been used to describe Amy C Wilson's designs. Creating unique cloth dolls and plush toys with curious expressions. Handcrafting each design from sketch, to pattern and to hand sewing the final cuddly creature. Some plushies are even scented of candies and fruits to add a little something special.

Amy describes her work:

"I consider my toys to be an expression of my love of cuddly monsters and Japanese style. I love color, texture, structure and furry things. I like to push the boundaries of what is considered normal and try to make people giggle. I enjoy my toy designs because they bring me joy."
